

4th Grade News

Well look at how the time has flown. We are 27 weeks into school. I feel like we should be counting down now to the end of the year instead of up. The kids are working hard this week creating a story in English. They picked a book and had to choose a picture from it that they could get inspiration from to be able to write a story. They worked hard for two days coming up with super sentences, and they finally had written a story. The third day, they passed their stories around the room and their friends took a red pen to them.

They peer reviewed a few different stories and then sent them back to the original owner. Students then had to look over what their peers wrote and figure out how to fix their story and make it even better. On the fourth day, the boys and girls worked so hard on rewriting their stories on nice paper, that they were able to work for 45 minutes quietly. They are very proud of their stories, and even were able to draw their own picture to go along with it. I cannot wait to hear all these stories.

In Math, we continue to learn about fractions. We are learning how to compare them by making them have the same denominator, then multiplying the numerator to make them equivalent. We had a few "lightbulbs" come on today.

In Reading, we found a "Lost City". We read the story, and found the city of Machu Picchu. We found out how it was found by a man named Hiram Bingham and he had help from a little boy from the area. The first picture he took was of the little boy in front of the ruins.

The weather is becoming very nice and we are hoping to be able to wear our outside tennis shoes starting next week. But, that also means that we still need to have our boots and snow pants here just in case of some snow. So please remember to bring OUTSIDE shoes next week.

No School on Monday!!!! End of third quarter was today, so look for report cards next week!

- Mrs. P and the 4th Graders

Student of the Month Jack

Spelling

1. smooth
2. afternoon
3. loop
4. room
5. shoot
6. mood
7. coop
8. broom
9. routine
10. fooling
11. stoop
12. roofs
13. boost
14. booth
15. raccoon
16. souvenir
17. wounded
18. bloomed
19. loose
20. tooth

NEXT WEEK:

- No School Monday Mar. 23

FUTURE:

- Easter Break April 2-6
- 2 Hr. Early Out April 10

