4th Grade News

This week we had a social test. I know we did great. We were learning about the Middle West. Did you know that Minnesota is in the Middle West? – Danielle

We had mass this week and we did a great job. Did you know we don't sing the Alleluia or Gloria during Lent? This Lenten season has been fun. Hope you have a good Lenten season. – Keegan

This week we read a story called Encyclopedia Brown. From the story we are also learning about reptiles and amphibians. A few differences are that reptiles have lugs and are born in hard shells. Amphibians are born with gills and breath through their skin. – Corrine

We are in the season of Lent. In Lent you fast, alms give, and pray. People try to act like Jesus before he died. It's 40 days because Jesus was in the desert doing these things. – Jack

This week we continued working on protractors. The protractor can go from angle 0-180. We had different worksheets to help us. We are having a test on Monday. – Colby

In Science, we made butter on Thursday. Did you know you can make butter from heavy whipping cream? First, we left it sit out for about two hours. Next we took turns shaking it for a minute each. After observing the mixture, we shook it for another 20 seconds each. Lastly, we had five crackers to dip in our homemade butter. It tasted much better than normal butter. – Isaac

If you may know we are reading Bridge to Terabithia in our book club. This week in Friday we read the last chapter and watched the movie. Hope you have a great weekend. – Landon

In English, we learned about adjectives. We started more and most. Using more means there are two things to compare. "The duck is more colorful than the heron." Using most means comparing more than two. "The male duck is the most colorful of all the ducks." We also learned adjectives that follow linking verbs. Here's one, "the snails are pink." Snails is the subject, are is the linking verb, and pink is the adjective. – Andy

This week has been a great one. We are finally mastering the protractor and we will be taking our test on Monday, we finished our first book club and we are able to watch the movie to go along with it, we continue to celebrate Lent and all its goodness, and the weather is warming after a harsh few weeks. :)

The kids are working hard to get everything complete. They really enjoyed Bridge to Terabithia and enjoyed the movie too. We are also keeping track of our prayers we do each day by coloring a piece of a stained glass window picture. Our goal is to have every piece colored before Easter. The students also enjoyed doing two different science experiments where we are talking about states of matter. They were able to see how a liquid and a solid can create gas, and how a liquid can create a solid that tastes delicious too!! - Mrs. P

Have a super weekend and
