

4th Grade News

Another week has come and gone. We are officially at 19 days of school. This week was a special week because we celebrated our Grandparents, and Grandfriends, and even had the Scholastic Book Fair all week long.

On Thursday we celebrated Grandparents Day with a Mass and a gathering in the gym. We were able to share a cookie with them and then spend some time looking throughout the Book Fair and our classroom. We enjoyed showing our grandparents around.

This week we are learning about Subjects and Predicates in English. We know the difference between the Complete Subject and the Simple Subject, and the difference between the Complete Predicate and the Simple Predicate.

In Math we are learning about decimals and how to read them. We can now read which place they are in, compare two decimals to see which is bigger, and we can round to the nearest tenth.

In reading, we read a story about a grandfather who traveled to the New World from Japan. He loved to explore and even brought his wife to live with him in California. They eventually moved back to Japan with their daughter and she married and had a baby boy. The baby boy that was born, would eventually write this story. He followed in his grandfather's footsteps and now lives in America, but frequently visits his homeland. The grandfather was never able to visit America again, because of WWII and then he was too old to travel. The grandson now knows why his grandfather loved both countries so much.

This week we started our NWEA testing. We have started our reading one, but will have to finish next week. Next week, as well, we will take the Math and the Language Arts tests. Please pray for us as we take these.

Have a great week-end!
